Eva Bernal introduces her guest, Dr. Rob Ingram, a chiropractor from Skypark Chiropractic. Dr. Ingram has helped many TBN employees with chiropractic problems and is affectionately called "Dr. Rob." Dr. Rob says more and more people are seeking chiropractors to avoid using medications. In his practice, he uses the Activator Method. The Activator is a hand-held instrument designed to deliver a controlled, light and fast thrust without undue strain to the patient. Dr. Rob works with each patient to restore proper spinal balance. He demonstrates a chiropractic adjustment on one of his patients, Diane Gingell. Some of the problems Dr. Rob treats are bursitis, tendonitis, tennis elbow, carpal tunnel syndrome, joint pain and backaches. Chiropractors care for their patients without drugs or surgery. The goal of adjustments is to help the body to function while allowing it to repair itself.

On the program, Dr. Reginald and Linda Cherry, discuss a new drug called Proscar, used for treating prostate cancer. The drug allows the prostate to shrink. The palmetto plant, like the drug Proscar, also helps the prostate gland to shrink. Dr. Cherry points out that many of the drugs used in cancer treatments are derived from plants. Using natural treatments to prevent and treat sickness is growing in popularity as an alternative to modern medicine, and will increasingly offer more choices in health care management as research continues.

On the program, Dr. Reginald and Linda Cherry discuss natural ways in which people can improve their memory. They site the lack of the minerals iron and zinc and/or folic acid as common causes for memory deficits in Americans. The lack of minerals is especially common in women. Dr. Reginald and Linda add that iron and zinc must be taken separately to receive the minerals' benefits. Vitamin B can be taken to supplement the folic acid that is low in American diets. They suggest B100 Complex as the best form of Vitamin B. Another way to help improve memory is to eat foods known as 'brain foods' containing selenium, such as fish and nuts. Dr. Cherry stresses the importance of viewers consulting their doctor before making any dietary changes.

Dr. Reginald and Linda Cherry discuss sleep disorders, a problem that plagues one million Americans. This problem in part is due to our cultures lifestyle; we are sleeping less and working more. On going sleep deprivation causes an increased susceptibility to sickness. Trying to play catch-up with sleep is most beneficial when sleep is regained as soon as possible. What really is needed is a 'sleep routine.' With discipline and training people can develop the healthy sleep patterns their bodies need. When this is not enough, and an individual can't sleep, he or she may need the aid of herbs or medications.

When Anne was diagnosed with terminal cancer her body was completely racked with tumors that had eaten holes through her spine and pelvis. She went on an aggressive chemo therapy and radiation treatment as well as undergoing a bone marrow transplant. Despite months of this aggressive treatment, the cancer came back and doctors sent her home to die. At this point, she went to a certified nutritionist and began a process of purifying her body from toxins and building up her immune system. Today she is completely cancer-free. KIDS AGAINST CRIME	#15	28:00	22:00	L	PA/O	04-05-97	5:00A
The message of this program is Be A Kid Against Drugs. Drugs can destroy the mind and the body. Drugs can stop you from realizing your dreams. Drugs can put you in prison. Rosey tells the kids they do not have to do drugs. It is their decision. They can make up their own mind. Rosey challenges the kids with all the good things they can do with their lives and tells them to be a kid against drugs.

Rosey Grier opens the program with a story about an eagle being raised by chickens. One day the eagle realized he could fly and flew away. Rosey relates this story to the topic of this program, being a kid against gangs. Rosey talks about kids thinking they are not getting enough love and attention at home and join gangs for a sense of belonging and then end up in lots of trouble. Rosey stresses that kids work at becoming strong individuals that contribute positively to their community. Realize that they can fly. Judge John Casoria warned kids in gangs to get out and run as fast as their feet can run away from gang life. The judge says that gang violence is so serious now that there are special penal code sections regarding gangs and gang members.
	#21	28:30	22:00	L	PA/O	04-26-97	5:00A
Rosey introduces the topic of today's program, arson. Bob Eggleston, fire investigator for Santa Ana, defines arson as the malicious burning of property. Bob says that fire leaves evidence fo where it was started. He encouraged kids to be witnesses and turn arsonists in to authorities. Judge John Casoria says matches and lighters are very dangerous. It is a tragedy when young people start a fire and it gets too big for them and they can't stop it. A little match can start a big fire and also put a person in jail.

The topic for today's program is drive-by shootings and Rosey Grier begins by telling about a newspaper article he read recently about a little boy who was killed in a drive-by shooting. He talks about the tragedy of taking away someone's future just because of anger between people. Meadowlark Lemon says shooting is a very cowardly thing to do. Too many kids are dying for stupid reasons. Kids are sitting in jail because they were stupid enough to carry and use weapons. An ex-gang member exhorts kids to stay away from drive-by shooting. You may destroy someone's life including your own.
Rosey Grier introduces the topic for the program, alcohol. Rosey discusses the destructive power of alcohol. Judge John Casoria says one-half million people die from alcohol each year. The #1 killer of kids under 18 is alcohol. The #1 cause of automobile deaths is related to alcohol. The judge says if you are driving and drinking and are stopped by a policeman, you are in serious trouble. If you have alcohol on your breath and in your car, your penalty will be enhanced. Meadowlark says to be a kid against crime and do not drink at all.
	#24	28:30	22:00	L	PA/O	05-17-97	5:00A
Host Rosey Grier introduces the program's topic, packing weapons. Rosey strongly cautions young people not to carry weapons for protection. He says that is why we have police officers. Judge John Casoria tells kids they are too young to deal with weapons. Kids with weapons are the ones who get shot. Judge Robert Hutson says if a young person is brought before him, charged with carrying a weapon to school, he will sentence them to jail for 6 months. Rosey asks kids to say no to weapons and be a kid against crime.

Rosey Grier talks about the crime of kidnapping. The word kidnapping means to seize, detain or carry away forcibly. Debbie, one of Rosey's guests, tells of being kidnapped and severely hurt by kids she associated with and called "friends." Debbie cautions young people to be very careful who they choose to spend time with and trust as friends. Stay away from violent, angry kids. Hulk Hogan tells kids that if they are approached by a suspicious stranger to holler, yell, scream and run away.
Rosey Grier introduces the topic for this program, the crime of robbery. Judge John Casoria says that burglary is a felony and even with juveniles, it is viewed as very serious. Judge Robert Hutson says that daytime burglaries by teen-agers means they are truant from school to do this robbery. The first thing he looks at is the truancy record. Mario tells about robbing a Jack-In-The-Box and the police shot and killed his buddy. All he got in the robbery was $23.00. Mario says he can't forget seeing his buddy's mother fall apart and just go crazy with grief at the funeral. Robbery is a no win situation. If you want something, work for it, save for it.
#16		28:00	22:00	L	PA/O	06-07-97	5:00A
Rosey Grier talks with kids about the danger of guns. He tells them they do not need guns. They have the police working on their behalf. They don't have to be angry, they don't have to be mad. If someone hurts them, they don't need to try to get even. They can learn to forgive that person. Rosey tells them to make a difference in our society and that means not getting involved in violence. If they come across a gun, don't use it because it can destroy their future. He tells them to think about their future, think about their family. Be a kid against guns.

On this Kids Against Crime episode, Host Rosey Grier, Meadowlark Lemon and Mr. T talk with teenagers about stealing and crime. The teenagers tell about how often stealing is a way to be accepted by a crowd. Kids want to be cool and a part of the group and don't think about the consequences. The kids share some of their experiences about when they got caught stealing. They say that having your friends acceptance does nothing for you when you are standing before a judge to be sentenced, and there's absolutely nothing cool about what follows. The teenagers encourage other teens to let young people know how uncool it is to steal or commit any crime. They say that a true friend will try to stop a friend from stealing.

Host Rosey Grier talks about the power and influence of a group to do good or bad with an ex-gang member named Lawrence. Lawrence shares how he turned from his violent and destructive lifestyle after leaving the gang he belonged to. The moment of truth came after watching his best friend bleed to death on the street as they fled during a botched shop lifting attempt. He realized that he was no more than a follower of a group that lived for the moment with little regard for others or even themselves. He decided to become responsible for his own destiny, to make positive choices that would pave a way for a future with promise and possibility. He became his own leader, rather than a follower of a destructive group whose members could be there one day and then gone the next. He says that the people that have now become his friends are people with similar positive goals. Where as the negative influence of the gang brought about violence and death in his life, his new group of friends help each other and encourage each other to bring about positive experience in their lives and others.

	Rod Hembree talks about opposition in life. Everybody has it and though opposition is an uncomfortable and difficult force, it can refine and strengthen people. Distraction, situations and people can act as opposition to goals people set. Determination, discipline and focusing on a goal are the offensive and defensive weapons people can use to overcome opposition in a positive way. In the long run, we become and stronger , like the athlete who has trained to reach a goal.

	Host Rod Hembree talks about making a difference in the world. Taking personal responsibility for what happens in life is paramount for people who want to have an effect on their world. When people abdicate taking control of their own destiny, they become reactionary rather than being active in life. This passive stance can promote the idea that the

For the person who wants to make an impact in life, this fundamental idea must be part of their mindset: Happiness comes from within because who you are in your heart and mind shapes the world around you. If you are passive you will be shaped by the world (never-the-less you have inadvertently shaped your world). If you are active, you will shape the world.

On Just The Facts, Rod Hembree takes a look at the power of love using the book of Esther from the Bible. Esther risked her life to save her people, the Israelites, because of her deep love for them. The Israelites' survival was threatened when a military leader named Hamon, who had a deep hatred for them, influenced the king to send out an order that would annihilate Esther's people. But Queen Esther had great favor with the king because of her inner loveliness--a beauty that emanated from a kind and loving heart. He granted her request to spare the Israelites. This Old Testament story illustrates the life giving power of love that has much greater influence and power than the power of hate. People who have love in their hearts will draw people to them and greatly influence them. Contrarily, although raw might and hate have a type of power, they do not bring life but death.

Host Rod Hembree draws lessons from the saga of Job in the Bible. Rod examines how the personal character needed for success is refined and chiseled from the struggles and challenges that life brings. When the going gets tough, instead of giving into a cloud of negative emotions that tends to filter out facts or the light of encouragement, we must gird ourselves up with an inner strength. It's not a question of if obstacles and difficult times will come, but rather when! To realize success in life, we must learn to persevere and not give in to negative emotion or difficult circumstances.

Rod Hembree talks about the short-comings of our culture's most popular forms of entertainment- television and movies. He says that when people are unhappy, often they turn to the artificial reality of the big and little screen as a way to forget their problems and feel better. The irony of tuning out the problems of everyday life and into the scripted world of TV and movies is that there is an overwhelming amount of negative content in these media. It's no secret that violence, horror and sex draw the biggest box-office returns and bring the highest ratings. Just the Facts spoofs the notion that the outrageous amount of gratuitous sex and violence on TV and movies will help your mental state of being at all. Rod says that happiness comes from knowing your true purpose in life.

Host Rod Hembree talks about a true resolution to depression. Often in our culture people turn to devices to cover unmet needs--needs that are the underlying cause of depression. Sports, shopping and entertainment are used to fulfill an emptiness in peoples lives. Just The Facts explores how faith is a powerful force in people's lives. A study was done where seriously ill patients were broken up into two catagories. One set of patients, while just as sick as the second group, had a strong faith in God. This group recovered at a signigicant rate over the group that had no spiritual beliefs. Rod says this example illustrates how human beings have spiritual needs. These needs cannot be filled or replaced with material or natural things. Spirituality can fill the darkness of depression, and the absence of it can dim the mind and heart, creating a void.

Because dishonesty is counter to what is real, it tears down its existence. This process of tearing down by denying the truth, acts as a destructive force and in its realization brings death in many forms. Moral absolutes promote what is real and persevere truth and thus persevere life, where as a world without these absolutes brings destruction.

	In this episode the show explores the value of using good judgment. In the Adventures of Rodney Nnewmonic, Rodney rescues Odyous Consumptious from a manipulative computer that instructs Odyous to seek true reality through experience. It tells him he must empty out his bank account and report with the money to a designated place and simply turn it over there. The computer reasons that humans must have all experiences to understand them and that includes Odyous giving all his money away at this mysterious place. Rodney Nnewmonic saves the day by reasoning with Odyous. He declares that Odyous does not have to experience all things to know all things. And blindly following the orders of what seems to be a higher informational source is not always wisdom. People must learn to think for themselves or they will be taken advantage of by others.

	Rod talks about the story of Hannah from the Bible and her struggle with feelings of inadequacy and failure. Hannah was teased continually because of her apparent inability to have children. Even her husband's great love for her and attempt to comfort her could not assail her feeling of shame. Hannah sought God, and then, after years of being barren, gave birth to a son. Hannah's son Samuel, went on to become one of the greatest historical figures in the nation of Israel. Rod says this story illustrates the value of a person's needs and desires. 	Rod Hembree talks about dealing with failure. Like King David in the Bible, we all fail. Often the response is to try to cover the offence. Rod says that when David tried to cover his affair with a married woman, David only committed increasingly grievous wrongs. Rod says everyone must make the choice to either hide or heal. Once David finally repented and turned from his failure, he began to heal. The sooner we admit our mistake and try to right the wrong, the less extent of the damage, and the sooner we will heal.

	Host, Rod Hembree talks about the combination of knowledge and faith. He says that it is not enough to know something, you must have conviction when it comes to tough issues. You must have a strong belief or faith in what you know. Head knowledge only goes so far, heart knowledge is needed. Furthermore, intelligence does not necessarily mean wisdom. Knowledge and a belief system (faith in what you know) are the combined factors that help a person to arrive at the best answer to a problem.

	Host, Rod Hembree talks about what or who controls our lives. He said that a big clue to what controls our lives can be found in what we seek in troubled times to comfort ourselves. Furthermore, what you choose to predominantly focus on, will control your life, whether it be money, education, intellect, friends, music or God. This focus is a form of worship when certain things become of supreme importance. In this respect, worship becomes attitude because what we put in our minds will

The inverse is true for a positive focus (i.e. worshipping God and thus upholding the golden commandment to love thy neighbor as thy self). It is paramount to remember that we have the power to choose what we focus on, and thus what our attitude will be.
